

Healthcare for Women

JPS healthcare providers are here to prevent health problems or find them early, when they could be easier to treat or cure. They manage chronic health conditions such as diabetes and heart disease. Your provider can help you plan and stay healthy between pregnancies.

Primary care for adults is available at JPS health centers in the community. In addition, the JPS Health Centers for Women feature a wide range of diagnostic services and specialty practices for women of all ages. These clinics provide access to specialists in obstetrics (pregnancy, childbirth, and postnatal care), gynecology (care of women and their reproductive system), gynecology (women's cancers), perinatology (maternal-fetal medicine), sonography (ultrasounds), urogynecology (female pelvic medicine).

Services include:

- Gynecology (well women and pelvic exams)
- Prenatal care (healthcare for women who are pregnant)
- Centering Pregnancy groups
- Postpartum care (healthcare after giving birth)
- Breastfeeding education and support
- Family planning and birth control
- Mammography (screening for breast cancer)
- Preconception and interconception education (healthcare for women of childbearing age)
- Sonograms

Breast Health

The Breast Center at the JPS Oncology & Infusion Center provides patient-centered breast care for women of all ages. The center is staffed by physicians, radiologists, and on-site nurse practitioners who specialize in breast services. Through our multidisciplinary approach and state-of-the-art diagnostic and therapeutic services, patients can receive accurate diagnosis and immediate care.

Oncology Services

The JPS Oncology & Infusion Center provides care to patients with cancer and blood disorders. We care for patients with gynecological cancer (women's cancer) such as cervical, ovarian, and uterine (womb) cancer. Our comprehensive program includes radiology, chemotherapy, and general clinical treatment in addition to laboratory, pharmacy, and social services.
