Healthcare's Best Places to Work

JPS receives distinction rare for public hospitals

Fort Worth, May 23, 2017 — JPS Health Network has been named among Modern Healthcare's Best Places to Work in Healthcare, placing JPS among the top 150 healthcare companies in the nation.

JPS is the only public entity in Texas included on the list of 2017 Best Places to Work, one of the most coveted honors in the industry. With a circulation of more than 70,000, Modern Healthcare is among the most respected sources of healthcare industry news in business, policy and research.

"This is our time. Our team members feel it, and it shows in the remarkable care they give to every person who comes through the doors of JPS," said Robert Earley, President and Chief Executive Officer of JPS.

The competition, now in its 10th year, extends far beyond hospitals, covering healthcare providers, insurers and suppliers "that empower employees to provide patients and customers with the best possible care, products and services."

Best Places to Work in Healthcare are selected based on results of an exhaustive application process that examines company policies, hiring practices and benefits, followed by a survey of hundreds of employees selected at random to provide anonymous responses to a lengthy questionnaire. For entities with more than 2,500 employees, including JPS, surveys were distributed electronically to 400 employees.

Modern Healthcare has released an alphabetical list of Best Places to Work on the magazine's web site. The winners will be ranked in September during Modern Healthcare's annual Workplace of the Future conference in Las Vegas.

"This is national recognition for what we know in our hearts," Earley said. "JPS makes lives better, and the hard work of thousands of team members is improving the health of the people of Tarrant County."
